NIFTY CHART

The event excitement seems to have fizzled out with the result numbers now open in public. Volatility remained at its fore as the index witnessed a swing from its days high at 10929 towards its day's low of 10781. Though the actual verdict of who controls the state is yet to be announced the market could remain range bound within 10700-10900 for a while. A decisive breach on either side of the range would attract directional momentum in the days to come. Traders should remain cautious as the index could see further oscillation within this range & avoid any fresh longs until a decisive breakout is not witnessed soon.
